

康谷中華文化協會

Conejo Chinese Cultural Association

California Lutheran
UNIVERSITY

Department of Language and Cultures

Seminar Series

Gastrointestinal and Liver Diseases Important to the Chinese American

Chinese Americans constitute a large and growing population in the United States, especially where we live in Southern California. Present public health guidelines and media reports on health subjects focus primarily on diseases common to all Americans and therefore tend to ignore diseases that may be more important to certain ethnic/racial groups. While Gastrointestinal (GI) and Liver diseases are common in the general population, the GI/Liver diseases that tend to afflict Chinese Americans are different. This talk will focus on GI and Liver diseases that are more important to the Chinese American.

Speaker: Dr. Tesu Lin, MD

Specializes in Gastroenterology

Dr Lin earned his Medical Degree from the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio and attended the University of Wisconsin for Internal Medicine residency and completed his Gastroenterology and Hepatology Fellowship at the University of Wisconsin Hospital in Madison.

His major clinical interests are in Gut Immunology and Tumor Biology. He speaks English, Japanese and Spanish.

Cost: Free

Language: English

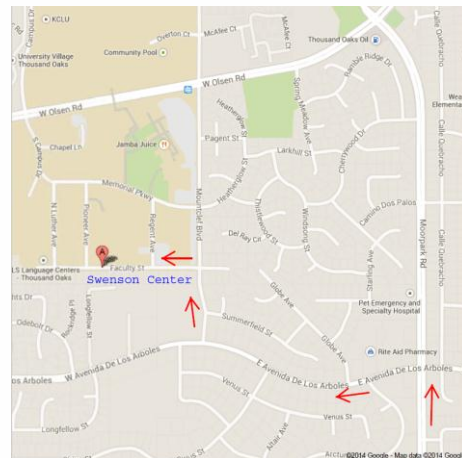

When :

Saturday, October 3rd, 2015 at 9:45-11:00am

Where :

Swenson Center, Room SWEN 101, CLU
141 Faculty Street, Thousand Oaks, CA 91360

Swenson Center, CLU is five minutes away from TOHS with plenty of parking space along Faculty Street and nearby parking lots.

Seminar is supported by Ventura County American Chinese Medical Dental Association